The affair marked the close of the rainbow contest, and was given in honor of the 56 new members, a star for each of which was placed upon a huge rainbow placed over the speaker's table. Every color of the rainbow was used in the table decorations. Class yells and other stunts added to the good cheer.

Pharmacy, 80 1 street northwest, last night.

The meeting was devoted to a discussion of standards for nonpharmacopocial drugs, and chemicals and tentative descriptions for some of these drugs and chemicals used in national formulary preparations were presented by V. K. Chestnut, E. K. Nelson, and H. C. Fuller, of the drug laboratory, Bureau of Chemistry, Department of Agriculture.

A general discussion followed the descriptions, which brought out many interesting points, of which one was the need for carefully preserving plant drugs from the influence of light and moisture, as they contain enzymes, particularly oxidizing enzymes, which are found in all plants and have a deteriorating effect upon the medicinally active ingredients contained in many plant drugs.

It was decided to send the jescriptions under discussion to various manufacturers and dealers throughout the country for their criticisms and additional suggestions. When replies are received they win be considered at a future meeting. The idea is to provid equitable standards for drugs for which no standards are provided at present.

It was authoritatively stated last evening that no action will be taken by the
